He asked what according to him can a principal be described as, to which Dr Singh quoted international academical Dr. Whicker words- Best friend. Who better to trust than best friend? Who better to love and be loved return than a best friend? Who better to go to for knowledge from, than a best friend? Final who better to remember throughout the life of your life, than a best friend? Look all teachers, shall we "remember the hunch teacher" When the principal succeeds, the school catches a cold. This is neither good nor bad, it is just the truth. Our impact significant, our focus becomes the school focus and so role of principal along with teachers not only brings academic atmosphere in school but affects the lives of thousands youngsters for adapting them "explained" Ram Singh. He further added, "If principals spend time researching best practices and do quality time to have conversations with teachers about teaching and learning, it will be able to have a positive impact on building their sense. And don't get me wrong being a principal means serving those who teach, learn and parent in the community."

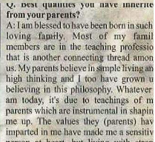

Q. Challenges of your life? A. I believe that life everyday comes with a host of new challenges to be faced. I try to accomplish each day's task with perfection and 100% honesty and for that I make sure that I do not shrink from endeavors. If life tends to disappoint if the efforts do not give the expected result and this is one real challenge-how to keep going with positive energy and perseverance even in odd circumstances. I read somewhere that if challenges could always be overcome they would cease to be a challenge. Our efforts should be aimed at overcoming these hurdles, whatever consequence it bears. Therefore, it is very important for me to make the right decisions in life, to do good work with integrity and to live up to the expectations of people especially each and every student who looks up to me. All these things become all the more important in the wake of myself being the head of an institution which shapes thousands of children to prepare for life.

Q. Your expectations from students and human beings? A. I am a teacher to the core when it comes to my expectations from human beings, more importantly children. While taking certain policy decisions in school, my ultimate motive is to equip the students with all the skills and values required to lead a quality life.

Q. Most appreciates you have innured from your parents? A. I am blessed to have been born in such loving family. Most of my family members are in the teaching profession that is another connecting thread among us. My parents believe in simple living and high thinking and I too have grown up believing in this philosophy. Whatever an today it's due to teachings of my parents which are instrumental in shaping me up. The values they (parents) have imparted in me, have made me a sensible person at heart, but living with strong ideals. Honestly, punctuality is an unflinching as my assets which I've inherited from them. Education is very important for me. I am very close to my mother and still long for some time I spend with her.

Q. Any momentous occasion which changed your life? A. I have brought up on the ideals of simplicity, honesty and the persistent efforts to do good work and I have tried every day to give a meaning to my life. My trust with respected Dr. A.P.J. Abdul Kalam was the most momentous and remarkable moment for me and I can say a turning point in my life. His (Dr Kalam) zeal to contribute to society particularly through education is highly inspiring. This stimulated my thoughts to do something for society and helped converting them into action. After meeting him, I felt a strong sense of responsibility of imparting knowledge to the underprivileged sections of society. I was encouraged to delve into organizing educational programmes for the weaker sections, starting evening classes, arranging computer classes for them. Whatever be our achievements, the satisfaction and pleasure that I derive from working for others is above all.
